Nikon D50 Field Guide

The D50 was my third DSLR after two Canons...a 10D and a 300D. I got this Nikon D50 and immediately liked it better than the Canons. So much so that I've already upgraded to a D70s, sold it and upgraded again to the D80. Now I'm looking for a good deal on the D300. But, back to the D50 Field manual (which I sold with the D50).

This Nikon D50 Guide will introduce you to Nikon's extremely popular entry-level camera. A lot of its popularity has to do with how well the camera handles color. If you compare digital SLR photos from different cameras side-by-side, you'll notice that not all cameras capture color in the same way.

Based on the Nikon D50 manual, in the focusing system, the camera has a better performance compared to its older brother, the D70. This focusing system is much better especially on the motion tracking area, and it has auto AF mode as well. So, the camera can automatically switch between continuous AF and single AF to follow the object.

The D50 only has one dial to change camera settings, and when you're using the camera in manual mode you have to change two: aperture and shutter speed. On the D50, the dial changes the shutter speed, and you have to press and hold a button while spinning the dial to change aperture. With the D70s there are two dials, one for each camera setting.
